Master classes have a long tradition in Sondershausen dating back to the Prince’s Conservatory in the 19th Century. Today they take place annually with alternating orchestral instruments and vocals. The final concerts are arranged with the cooperation of the Loh Orchestra in Sondershausen. In 2016, the Landesmusikakademie Sondershausen in Thuringia invites the musically gifted from around the world to work with Friedemann Eichhorn, Professor at the Hochschule für Musik FRANZ LISZT Weimar. In addition to the individual lessons with Eichhorn, a special feature of the Master Class is that participants will also be working with the Loh Orchestra in Sondershausen (Orchestra Studio). After an intensive phase of work, the best participants will present a public concert at the Achteckhaus as part of the 4th Loh concert series.

Friedemann Eichhorn is a professor at the Hochschule für Musik FRANZ LISZT in Weimar and is the artistic director of the International Louis-Spohr Violin competition. He taught for many years at the Sommerschule des Mozarteums in Salzburg, the Gustav Mahler Akademie in Bozen and at the Villa Musica. Among his students are many winners of international competitions and members of renowned opera and radio orchestras. An alumnus of the Kronberg Academy himself, Friedemann Eichhorn has been Director of the Kronberg Academy Masters since 2012.

He has performed with orchestras including the SWR Radio Orchestra and the St. Petersburg Philharmonic and made guest appearances in concert halls (Gasteig Munich, Philharmonie St. Petersburg, Konzerthaus Berlin) and at various festivals. As a chamber musician, he worked together with Gidon Kremer and Yuri Bashmet, as a soloist, he played under the direction of Yehudi Menuhin. There are more than 20 CD productions by him, including several world premiere recordings, available on the Hänssler Classic and Oehms and Naxos labels.

Friedemann Eichhorn studied violin with Valery Gradow at the Musikhochschule Mannheim, with Alberto Lysy at the International Menuhin-Music Academy in Gstaad and was a DAAD scholar under Margaret Pardeeat the Juilliard School in New York. He also credits Saschko Gawriloff as a significant influence. He graduated with a degree in music science from the University of Mainz after writing his dissertation on Gidon Kremer. As a publisher of sheet music and author of encyclopedia articles for MGG, Friedemann Eichhorn continues to be active in the academic field of music. He plays a violin by Domenico Montagnana with the kind support of Violin Assets.
